Maxwell Systems Wins Constructech's Hottest Company Award

KING OF PRUSSIA, Pa. – July 6, 2009 – Maxwell Systems, Inc., a leading provider of integrated construction business management software solutions, announced today that it has been named to Constructech magazine's 50 Hottest Companies list in 2009. The company has also been recognized by Constructech receiving three Top Products awards in 2008 and 2009.

The Constructech 50 Hottest for 2009 is a list of the most influential construction technology providers with a strong and ongoing presence as determined by the editors of Constructech magazine with assistance from its editorial advisory board. When determining the 2009 winners from more than 200 companies, the editorial team focused on the following criteria: having a strong product/service aimed at the construction industry, customer satisfaction, and growth, as well as outreach and educational efforts for the construction industry.

"Being named to this influential list of top technology companies is a great honor," said Jim Flynn, Maxwell Systems President and CEO. "We have focused on providing software solutions to the construction industry for more than 30 years. We are dedicated to listening to our clients, understanding their current requirements, anticipating their future needs, and developing solutions that increase their operational efficiency and improve their profitability. Being recognized with numerous industry awards validates that our strategy to focus on our customers first is the right direction for future success."

Peggy Smedley, Editorial Director of Constructech, commented: "This compilation of solution providers who make up the Constructech 50 Hottest companies, as well as the industry insight found throughout the Constructech IT Playbook, arms readers with the knowledge they need to make successful implementations now and into the future."

The Constructech 50 Hottest companies list is published in the first annual Constructech IT Playbook. This directory is a new variation on the 50 Hottest awards that Constructech has presented in the past. While in previous years companies were judged based on the success and growth found solely in the past year, winners of the 2009 Constructech 50 Hottest were evaluated on a continued and dominant presence in the marketplace.
